QUALITY

What We Do

Offering courses on campus and online, Argosy University is divided into five colleges. Through Argosy University's College of Business, students learn not just how to manage companies, but how to lead people by integrating business principles with psychology and behavioral sciences. Courses in Argosy University's College of Psychology and Behavioral Sciences help students develop the specific competencies required of clinical practitioners, including through internships. Programs offered through Argosy University's College of Education are conducted in a collaborative environment designed to encourage innovation and give students a chance to explore the historical, philosophical, psychological, technical, theoretical, and practical aspects of education and institutional administration.

The University's College of Health Sciences allows students to study in the areas of dental hygiene, medical laboratory technology, radiation therapy, diagnostic media sonography, histotechnology, medical assisting, radiologic technology, and veterinary technology. Argosy University's College of Undergraduate Studies offers programs designed to equip students with the communication, critical thinking, and problem-solving skills needed to pursue an entry-level career choice or graduate study in the areas of business administration, criminal justice, liberal arts, and psychology.

COMMUNITY

How Our Students are Making a Difference

Argosy University instructors bring more than just a textbook and a syllabus to the classroom. They bring valuable real-world experience that prepares students for an increasingly-competitive job market. Outside the classroom, Argosy University students are encouraged to use their talents to serve their communities as they acquire the leadership skills they need for success in the marketplace.

GROWTH

Who We Educate

With a total enrollment of more than 23,900 students as of Fall 2009, Argosy University continues strong growth as students seek to improve their professional skills for the marketplace.

To expand its reach to more students than ever before and honor the service of our nation's veterans, Argosy University is working with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs in the "Yellow Ribbon" reduced tuition program, part of the post-9/11 G.I. Bill.
